Physical Risks of Exercise

Triathlon, Duathlon, Running, and Swimming are physically demanding sports that require the athlete to undertake consistent vigorous exercise in training. With any type of vigorous high-level physical exercise, there is the possibility of risk occurring. These risks include fainting, irregularities in heartbeat, and in exceptional cases, heart attack and sudden death. In addition, the stresses on the musculoskeletal system may cause tendon and muscular injury ranging from stiffness and sore muscles and tendons through to muscular tears and bone fracture. During competition, triathletes, duathletes, runners, and swimmers may motivate themselves to exercise at levels very close to or at their maximum. Consequently, during training and competition you could be exposed to these risks.

Prior to beginning training, it is required that you complete a medical history questionnaire, a physical activity record, and provide some basic physical measurements such as height and weight. This information is required to ensure that you are healthy and physically active and able to begin training. It is essential that you provide this information accurately, as incorrect information could provide a false impression of your health and physical readiness. This could lead to fitness programming that is at a level that is inappropriate for your current level of health and fitness. At best, this could result in poor adaptation to the training, excessive fatigue and/or injury. At worst, it could result in heart attack and death. You therefore agree to provide us with truthful, current, complete and accurate information.

Disclaimer

Camelback Coaching will rely on your information disclosed in this questionnaire as a complete, accurate, and truthful record of your medical history. Camelback Coaching and its representatives are not medical practitioners; we will rely on your answers on the above questionnaire (and the opinion of a physician, if you indicate such to us or we deem advisable) to determine the safety of your undertaking vigorous physical training. Camelback Coaching and its representatives will not be held responsible for any damages, loss or expenses suffered by you, including those incurred as a result of your failure to provide complete, accurate, and truthful information concerning your medical condition or as a result of the medical practitioner failing to consider, assess, or diagnose your medical condition accurately, thoroughly, or at all.

Waiver

I acknowledge and accept all risk associated with physical training; I understand that such training, by its nature, is rigorous, and that I am volunteering for such training without recourse to Camelback Coaching and its representatives. I waive, release, and discharge from any and all claims on losses or liabilities of death, personal injury, partial or permanent disability, property damage, medical or hospital bills, theft, or damages of any kind, including but not limited to economic loss, attorney's fees and costs, which may in the future arise out of or related to my participation in this training program. I authorize Camelback Coaching personnel to use emergency/first aid treatment should it become necessary, but I expressly authorize Camelback Coaching personnel not to use such treatment as well.
